

Tackling child trafficking

The fight against sexual exploitation of children is one of the main priorities defined in the national security plan of the Belgian government.

The central trafficking in human beings department of the federal judicial police has been combating these atrocious crimes against minor victims for many years now.

The integral and integrated approach to child trafficking has contributed to a true awareness in our country of the need to further intensify the fight against this phenomenon.

This is why the central trafficking in human beings department has chosen to participate once again in this new awareness and information campaign aimed at preventing sexual exploitation of minor victims.

Together we are stronger!
